But Reilly received a telephone call from London. His/her aunt had died.

Reilly heard the postman. He/she opened the mail: a bill for $680.

Reilly felt ill with an awful headache. All he/she wanted to do was lay down.

But that day, Reilly slipped on a wet stair and broke his/her wrist ...

Reilly's mobile rang. It was his/her employer and he sounded mad ...

Reilly got a call from a friend at the beach, inviting him/her there for a fortnight.

Then there was a knock on the door. It was his/her cousin, asking to stay for a month.

Reilly woke the next day with a terrible cold – he/she couldn't get out of bed.

Reilly got a phone call from Jamie – a nice person in his/her class, asking Reilly on a date.
